HOMEWORK

Homework should support the development of each student's independence as a learner. The objective of homework is to form part of a developmental learning program that is responsive to individual need, relevant to the classroom learning focus and further the partnership between school and home.

You can assist your child with homework by providing a suitable environment and encouraging them to organise their time at home in order to adopt good homework habits.

We ask that parents discuss their child's homework with them and if any concepts are problematic, inform the teacher.

Home reading is strongly encouraged and is a key component to weekly homework. Books sent home are intentionally 'readable' so that students can focus on fluency and comprehension in home reading.

We encourage parents and students to log their home reading in the Read-it Diary.
